

WAR HOLIDAY IS ASSURED TO WORLD

Rail Line, Kiao Chow Go To China

Menacing Situation Which Was Expected to Precipitate War in Far East Is Removed Through Notable Agreement.

By United Press Leased Wire
Continental Hall, Washington, D. C.—A final settlement of the troublesome Shantung question—a potential source of war ever since the Versailles conference—was officially announced to the arms conference Wednesday by Secretary of State Hughes.

Hughes sprang a surprise on the conference by announcing the settlement of the Shantung question, which had been pending since the Versailles conference, providing for the return of the Shantung province to China, had been completed.

He read the compact to the conference. The draft was completed by the Japanese and Chinese conferences Tuesday night.

Hughes' statement that he "was happy to be able" to reveal the Shantung settlement brought an outburst of applause.

RETURNS LEASEHOLD
Besides giving over to China the important Shantung railway, the settlement calls for return of Kiao Chow, the former German leasehold to China; restoration of public properties to China, with some exceptions; removal of Japanese troops as soon as the Chinese are able "to take over"; in any case not later than six months.

As for the railway settlement proper, China pays approximately $3,500,000 gold marks plus charges for improvements made by Japan since she has administered the road, following her seizure of Kiao Chow from the Germans.

The payment for the line shall be in treasury notes covering 15 years but with a redemption privilege in five years.

A Chinese managing director will have, under the plan, a Japanese manager and a Japanese accountant (jointly operating with Chinese accountants).

REMOVES FRICTION
The outstanding fact for the world is that China gets back Kiao Chow and the Shantung railway, thus removing a serious source of friction in the Far East. Thus ends what was called during the Versailles treaty debates here "the shame of Shantung."

"Permit me to express to the representatives of the Chinese and Japanese governments the most sincere congratulations," said Hughes, "that they have been able to reach an agreement on this serious question."

Baron Shidehara was called then. Shidehara expressed his gratitude to Hughes and Balfour for extension of their "good offices" which paved the way to a settlement.

He noted that adjustments of this kind might not satisfy all but he considered it vital that this vexatious question had been "set at rest."

"Both Japan and China have put forth their best efforts to get an amicable settlement," he said. "These efforts have been amply rewarded. This will contribute not only to the peace of the world but also to the peace of the world."

He concluded amid applause.

BELIEVE GAGGED WOMAN WAS HURLED FROM AUTO
By United Press Leased Wire
Kansas City, Mo.—The body of an unidentified woman of about 35 years of age, who had been choked to death by her own silk stockings, was found in the railroad subway at Twentieth and Charlotte streets here Wednesday, police announced.

Except for the lower extremities, the body was fully clothed in black. The remnants of a gag made from an undershirt, was in the mouth.

Police believe the body was hurled from an automobile from the roadway, 60 feet above the subway.

Sewing Machine Easily Sold
A woman living on Appleton St. recently advertised a sewing machine for sale through Post-Crescent Want Ads. She had about twenty persons who called to see the machine but did not take it away. Several other persons said that they would have bought the machine had they had the opportunity. One of the persons who called to see the machine said that she was looking for a sewing machine and can only be reached through the use of a Post-Crescent Want Ad. If you have a machine to sell insert your Want Ad in the next edition of the Post-Crescent and find a buyer at once.

British Peers Want To Drink Until 11 P.M.

By United Press Leased Wire
London—A contingent of prominent Britishers, including the following peers, Lord Incheape, Lord Ritchie of Dundee, Lord Sutherland, Lord Balfour of Burleigh, Lord Ashfield, Lord Farington and Lord Devenport, has addressed an appeal to the licensing justices against further restriction of drinking hours, sought by "Pussyfooting" reformers.

A recent effort to shorten the drinking hours, closing saloons at 10 p. m. instead of 11 p. m. resulted in the movement on the part of the lords "to preserve British liberty."

"Probably never in the history of Britain," says the peers' appeal, "has the liberty of the individual been subjected to such rigorous limitation as at present."

BLAMES RAIL HEADS FOR LAX WAR SERVICE

McAdoo Says Executives Managed Roads — Were Betrayed When Returned

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington—The railroads were returned to their owners after federal control in better condition than when the government seized them, William G. McAdoo, former director general of railroads, asserted before the senate interstate commerce committee Wednesday.

McAdoo vigorously defended government control and sharply assailed railroad executives, who are attributing the present crippled condition of the lines to lack of maintenance during war-time operation. He cited long lists of figures to prove his contentions.

His lines were immediately eliminated, however, was any inefficiency in railroad operation during the war, McAdoo said, the responsibility must be placed squarely up to the same railroad executives, who are now crying that their lines were under-maintained.

WARNED PRESIDENTS
These executives were managing their lines during governmental operation. McAdoo revealed that shortly after governmental operation began, he wrote letters to Samuel Rea, president of the Pennsylvania; Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio; and E. C. Bessie, president of the Central of New Jersey, threatening to remove them from their offices unless inefficiency on their lines immediately eliminated.

Seizure of the roads, McAdoo said, was necessary, because the congested railroads under private operation had failed to enforce the safety of the nation and the allied cause.

"In the year 1918, after paying a rental to the railroad corporations of $900,000,000 there was a deficit in railroad operations of $216,000,000," McAdoo said. "Unthinking people urge signed to enforce the safety of the nation and the allied cause."

"It was part of the war cost and like all war cost, it was an expenditure for which there is no compensation but victory."

RAILROAD MEN AND MINERS MAY UNITE IN WAGE BATTLES

Merger Proposed by Lewis Would Combine Most Powerful Unions in U. S.

By United Press Leased Wire
Indianapolis—An alliance of union coal miners and railroad workers—the two most powerful labor groups in the country—was proposed Wednesday by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers.

An invitation to the railroaders asking them to join their lot with the miners was sent to heads of all rail brotherhoods, as a direct outgrowth of a movement started at the Cleveland convention of miners in 1919.

"The railroad workers have been compelled to accept inequitable wage reductions and propaganda is now being conducted on a gigantic scale designed to enforce further unwarranted wage cuts on them," said Lewis. "It is likewise apparent that certain interests are seeking wage reductions in the coal mining industry."

"In order to cope with this situation and to successfully combat this frenzied system, the mine workers are willing to unreservedly pool their interests with the railroad organizations and stand with them in resistance to the proposed attacks on wage scales."

DISABLED VETS STILL RECEIVE HUGE U. S. SUM

Almost Half a Billion Leaves Treasury Every Year, Bonus Talk Reveals

BIG BUDGET WILL CONTINUE Insurance Premiums Collected During War Insufficient for Claims

By David Lawrence
Copyright, 1922, by Post Pub. Co.
Washington—More than four hundred and fifty million dollars a year, which in pre-war years represented half the amount spent for the entire government budget of the United States, is to be expended during the coming year and doubtless for the next five or six years to pay compensation to disabled veterans and insurance on the lives of those who were victims of the war.

While the agitation for a soldier bonus to be given to those who were physically injured by the war continues, the facts of what the disabled veterans are costing the government are gradually being disclosed.

It was not generally realized until the house of representatives Tuesday sent to the senate the veterans' bill that so large an amount is being expended as a result of the war.

The best estimates available indicate that the $450,000,000 item will continue to be a part of the budget for the next several years. It is one-eighth of the total cost of government expenditures and may be cut somewhat as the hospitalization expense diminishes but in general the expenditure will be in the neighborhood of $400,000,000.

DEBT WILL CONTINUE
There is one item, however, which will grow as it is partly spoken of in connection with estimates of the cost of the war, but it is as much a debt as anything else in the long tabulations of government expense. In the budget sent to congress the words "indefinite appropriation" are used but the truth is the government must set aside fully a billion dollars during the next 20 years to meet payments on the insurance policies of those who died during the war.

PREMIUMS LOW
Unfortunately from a fiscal standpoint only $350,000,000 in premiums were collected during the war to meet the insurance policies that might become due. The potential liability of the government to those who died is about $1,300,000,000. Thus far the payments have been made out of the premium collections of $350,000,000 but this will come to an end in a year. Then provision must be made to meet the billion dollar deficit. The payments are graduated over 20 years so it will not strain the government as the annual appropriation for the veterans bureau will always carry it.

In other words if the days of normalcy should ever come, the debt of the government to the disabled veterans will require at least half a billion dollars. The chances are that America will never see a pre-war budget of a billion dollars for at least 20 years to come.

The reason the bonus is really being fought so aggressively by the men who know the fiscal side of the government is that they know if a bonus is paid it will be a continuing item. The government will have to pay annually and once the precedent of government aid to those who were injured physically is established the chances of indefinite appropriations for a period of years are appreciably increased.

JURY SOON TO GET ARBUCKLE'S CASE
Both Sides Are Confident of Victory As Testifying Comes to End

By United Press Leased Wire
San Francisco—Arguments to the jury in the Roscoe Arbuckle manslaughter trial started Wednesday afternoon and will continue through the day.

The state opened its arguments to have him found guilty of a manslaughter charge in connection with the death of Virginia Rappe. According to this schedule, the case will probably be in the jury's hands some time Thursday afternoon.

The jury renders a verdict strictly according to the evidence of what happened to Virginia Rappe in Arbuckle's bedroom on Labor day, a verdict of guilty will be returned," said District Attorney Brady Wednesday.

"There is no doubt that Arbuckle will be quickly vindicated by the jury," said Gavin McNab, the comedian's chief counsel. "The state's case has completely fallen through."

SALOONMEN FIGHT HARD TO OBTAIN RELEASE IN COURT

Five Kaukauna saloonkeepers charged with violating the Severeon act as a result of evidence secured against them in a raid made by federal and state agents Jan. 31, put up a hard legal fight for the dismissal of the charges against them at a preliminary hearing in municipal court Wednesday.

Those given a hearing Monday were Joseph Hendricks, Henry Van Abel and Jacob Miller. Mrs. Charles Dietrick and Joseph Derens had pleaded guilty when arraigned before Judge A. M. Spencer Monday afternoon. Jan. 23, but sentences were not announced pending the outcome of the trial of the other three who denied that they had sold intoxicating liquor.

Dry agents F. B. Laabs, Carl Henning and a federal prohibition officer from Milwaukee testified for the state. Officials of the Anti-Saloon League and others interested in the case also were present. More than 100 people, many of them residents of Kaukauna, appeared as the hearing was about to begin and it was necessary to hold it in the circuit court room so that all could be provided with seats.

Several bottles of "moonshine" seized by the officers in the raid were introduced as evidence by the state. These were tested for alcohol content by Officer Henning who told the court that three of them were 50 per cent alcohol and a fourth was 35 per cent alcohol. When the case of Jacob Miller was heard, the state introduced as evidence a small wicker basket containing two quart bottles, a newspaper and a sweater. Officer Henning testified that he had found the basket behind the bar in Miller's saloon. Another dry officer told of finding two pint bottles full of liquor on the floor under some newspapers. These bottles were also introduced as evidence and a test of their contents by Henning showed that they were 50 per cent alcohol.

HELD FOR TRIAL
Judge Spencer announced that while there might be some doubt as to the ownership of the bottles found in the window, the basket and quart bottles discovered behind the bar would be considered as presumptive evidence of guilt by the court. At this juncture Miller's attorney asked permission to introduce further testimony for the defense and court was adjourned until 2 o'clock.

After the hearings of Hendricks and Van Abel in the forenoon they were bound over for trial. It was expected that the court would set the date of their trial sometime during the afternoon hearing.

YAMAGATA IS DEAD; RULE BY GENRO ENDED

New Political Era in Japan is Expected Through Elder Statesman's Death

By United Press Leased Wire
Tokyo—Field Marshal Prince Arima Yamagata, died at his home at Odawara near here Wednesday.

His death ended the rule of the genro or "elder statesmen" of whom Yamagata was the head. It means a new political era in Japan and may have vital consequences in government affairs.

Yamagata has been called the real ruler of Japan. The genro had so entrenched themselves that they became, for all practical purposes, the government. Yamagata was the last survivor of the original elder statesmen group.

No other personality can revive or maintain the genro, it is said, and with Yamagata's death passes one of the world's unique and powerful political institutions.

PACKING MEN TOLD TO GRAB OLD JOBS

Chicago—The fight with the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butchers Workmen of North America went in receipt Wednesday of a recommendation that the strike of packing house employees be called off.

The advice was sent out by Dennis Lane, secretary of the national organization. The message, according to Lane, advised the men to secure their old jobs.

Lane refused further comment. The strike was called when packers refused to recognize unions.

Texas Man Tells Senate Committee of Deaths Following Assault on Women

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington—Two white American soldiers who attacked two aged French women at Issur-Tille, France, were shot down on the spot by an angry mob of United States officers and privates, William Miller of Dallas, Tex., told the senate committee investigating the Watson charges Wednesday.

"It was an eye witness to the shooting but did not take part in it myself," Miller said.

Miller, a former lieutenant, said that two men were dragged out of the cafe by the mob, given a severe beating and then marched into the woods and shot down with revolvers.

Two captains, he said, directed the affair.

5 Great Powers Approve Naval Limitation Pact

Open Session of Arms Conference Officially Assures End of Naval Competition For First Time in History

(By Carl D. Groat)
Continental Hall, Washington, D. C.—The five-power treaty providing for a sweeping limitation of naval armament, was formally approved by the arms conference in plenary session Wednesday.

One after another the representatives of the five powers arose and officially announced their acceptance of the treaty.

This followed a speech by Secretary of State Hughes in which he stated that the agreement—the first of its kind in the history of the world absolutely ends the competition among the great nations in naval building.

M. Sarraut, head of the French delegation, replied to Hughes for France.

M. Sarraut vigorously defended the naval position of France throughout the conference and pleaded for American sympathy.

In the marble D. A. R. hall where on Nov. 12 Secretary of State Hughes let burst his "bombshell" proposal for scrapping a vast number of capital craft, he Wednesday gave the world the finished product in a document which, written on the scrolls of time, is destined to be hailed as the world's most successful curb on competitive armaments up to the twentieth century.

What the grayer, wearier man, Hughes Wednesday presented was known in general to the world. This, however, was its first official release to a world yearning after peace. Rounding it out was another treaty banning submarines as carriers of commerce and the use of poison gas in war.

Hughes laid the treaty before the fifth plenary session of the conference shortly after the opening at 11 o'clock. SCRAP 68 SHIPS

Under the treaty, the three great naval powers—the United States, Great Britain and Japan—will scrap 68 great capital ships of a total tonnage of 1,361,632. The smallest number of old ships to be junked by France and Italy contribute to make these figures even higher.

The treaty starts a ten year naval holiday—with a few exceptions—in capital ship building, dating from Nov. 12, 1921, when the conference was opened.

The completed treaty announced Wednesday is mainly the same as the original American proposals. It was a victory for the United States.

SPECIFICS RATIOS
The treaty provides for a 5-5-3-1.75 ratio in capital ship tonnage between the United States, Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy, respectively. The replacement tonnage basis for these respective powers is 525,000; 525,000; 315,000; 175,000 and 175,000 tons.

Iron clad, technical rules and regulations are embodied in the pact to see that the ships to be scrapped are actually sent to the junk heap.

The powers agree in the treaty that if during its duration the national security of one of the nations is threatened there will be a conference of the signatory powers, at the request of the affected nation, to consider changes in the pact to meet the situation.

It is also provided in the treaty—a fact not fully known before—that the United States, in consultation with the other powers, shall call another conference of the signatory nations as soon as possible after eight years from the coming into force of the treaty to consider any needed changes in the pact, "in view of possible technical and scientific developments."

WARNING NATIONS WITHDRAWN
Whenever any signatory power becomes engaged in war affecting the naval defense of its national security, the treaty specifies, such power may suspend for the period of hostilities, upon notice to the other contracting nations, the major part of its obligations under the treaty. After the war, the contracting powers will meet in conference to determine any necessary modifications in the treaty.

The treaty lasts for 15 years, the date of its expiration being Dec. 31, 1936. Its automatic continuance, however, is provided for. If none of the contracting powers gives notice to the United States of its intention to terminate the treaty, the pact "shall continue in force until the expiration of two years from the date on which notice of termination shall be given by one of the contracting powers, whereupon the treaty shall terminate as regards all the contracting powers."

LIMITS GUN SIZE
Article VI forbids guns on capital ships larger than 16 inch.

Article VII provides aircraft carrier tonnage thus: America, 185,000; Britain, 10,000; France, 10,000; Japan, 10,000; Italy, 10,000.

ADOPT "OPEN DOOR"
Hughes then and the seven other resolutions adopted a few days ago giving China a new affirmation of the world's intent to respect her open door and her territorial integrity.

These were adopted viva voce. The next resolution was that agreeing against any discrimination on the basis of race or nationality in the granting of trade privileges.

Hughes then definitely and officially announced that the troublesome Shantung question had been settled. In a sing song voice, he went on to the resolution in which the eight powers express to China the hope that the nation will reduce its internal military forces and expenditures. The resolution was adopted.

Digest Of Treaty

Washington—The naval treaty completed by the arms conference provides, besides a modified ten year naval holiday, a set scale of future tonnage for America, Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy, based on the maintenance of a 5-5-3-1.75 ratio, though the ratio itself was not mentioned out of deference to Japan, who felt that it branded her with an unnecessary inferiority. It provides for the scrapping or abandonment now of the following number of battleships or other fighting craft: America, 30; Great Britain, 24; Japan, 24, while France and Italy do no scrapping until 1926 and 1931 respectively.

With these scrapping provisions carried out at once, America will retain the following capital ships: Maryland, California, Tennessee, Idaho, New Mexico, Mississippi, Arizona, Pennsylvania, Oklahoma, Nevada, New York, Texas, Arkansas, Wyoming, Florida, Utah, North Dakota, Delaware, a total of 500,650 tons; but the United States can complete two West Virginia type ships, whereupon she Delaware leaving her during the treaty, she will have a total of 525,000 tons.

VARY RATIO
The 5-5-3-1.75 ratio, as will be seen, is slightly varied at the start, but when replacements start it will be in force as the powers are allotted the following replacement tonnage: United States 525,000; Britain 525,000; Japan, 315,000; France, 175,000; Italy 175,000.

As matters now stand, under the treaty, the United States is given the right to complete two West Virginia class ships—probably the Colorado and West Virginia, though it was originally planned to complete the Colorado and Washington; while Britain can build two new ships and France and Italy each start replacing one ship each in the years 1927, 1928.

With these exceptions, naval building halts for ten years when replacements can begin. A ship must be 20 years old before it can be replaced.

STANDS FOR PEACE
The treaty preamble notes that the five powers desire to contribute to the maintenance of the general peace and to reduce the burdens of competition in armament.

The treaty is divided into three chapters with 25 articles.

Article I says "the contracting powers agree to limit their respective navies in accordance with the provisions in the present treaty."

Article II notes that ships may be retained (as already outlined above) in accordance with a later table.

Article III provides the powers shall abandon proposed shipbuilding programs and shall replace in accordance with tables attached.

Article IV gives the replacement tonnage figure, constituting the ratio assignment as already outlined above.

Article V forbids construction of any battleship of over 35,000 tons.

Article VI forbids guns on capital ships larger than 16 inch.

Article VII provides aircraft carrier tonnage thus: America, 185,000; Britain, 10,000; France, 10,000; Japan, 10,000; Italy, 10,000.

PESKY PEDDLER
PAYS PROFITS TO
MUNICIPAL COURT

Neglect to Get License Gets Man Into Trouble When
"Patrons" Complain

A big business on a small scale was squelched here Tuesday when Officer John Kobussen arrested a man giving the name of James Taylor who was peddling without a license.

Several residents had complained to the police about the unbecomingly persistent of the peddler before he was finally taken in custody. The man was selling small bottles of worthless rubber cement which he had acquired from a local concern at one cent each. He offered them for sale at 50 cents but if the prospective customer objected to this price he would finally lower it to 30 cents and then to a dime. If this low figure failed to induce a sale, he would ask the price of 15 cents to help him pay his carfare. He was so persistent in his demand that a number of persons bought from him or gave him money just to hurry him away.

When arraigned in municipal court the peddler gave his address as Green Bay and admitted that he did not have a peddler's license. He was fined $5 and costs. A few days ago police received reports of a man who was canvassing homes and by his manner and ugly looks virtually forcing people to buy from him. It is not known whether Taylor is the same man or whether another may still be in the community.

Knitted While She Waited To Get In Theatre

All kinds of persistence reveals itself when an extremely theatrical attraction comes to the city, and people use all kinds of schemes to gain early entrance to obtain good seats.

It remained for an aged lady, perhaps past 70 years, to gain a conspicuous seat at the evening performance of "The Bat" Tuesday, however, after purchasing a gallery ticket. She came to the box office about 4 o'clock and had brought her knitting and a lunch with her. She obtained the necessary passbook, then walked into the ladies' parlor, selected a comfortable rocking chair and waited.

"I have heard so much about this show that I'm going to see it, no matter how long I have to wait," the woman told Henry Gribler, manager. Feeling that she deserved some consideration because of her age and devotion, Mr. Gribler admitted her to the gallery just ahead of the surging crowd at the moment the doors were opened.

A large group of college girls also sought places in the gallery, and they went through the doorway so fast their tickets could not be collected. Mr. Gribler had to go through the upper section afterwards, where he collected 18 tickets.

ZUEHLKE DISPOSES
OF HIS LUNCHROOM

Otto Zuehlke, who has conducted the Railroad lunchroom at 228 Appleton-st., opposite the Northwestern railway passenger depot for about one year, has sold his entire equipment to Henry Lillge, formerly connected with the Greinke Construction Co., who took possession Wednesday. The building is owned by John Gassner.

Mr. Zuehlke intends to engage in the insurance and real estate business and will open an office here later in the month.

ELKS WILL INITIATE
LARGE CLASS TONIGHT

Mayor Welsh of Janesville, district deputy, will inspect the Elk lodge Wednesday evening. The inspection will be preceded by the initiation of a class of 28 candidates which will increase the total membership to 812. The evening's program will conclude with a lunch.

Digest Of Treaty

Article VIII notes aircraft carrier replacement shall be carried out according to a subsequent table.

Article IX sets a 27,000 ton limit on such carriers but allows each power to build of more than the deemed list two ships each of 25,000 tons for carrier purposes. It also limits size of guns.

Article X contains further technical provisions as to armament of such carriers so they can not be used for other than transportation of aircraft.

Article XI puts a ten thousand ton limit on auxiliary craft.

Article XII limits auxiliary craft guns to eight inches.

Article XIII orders against reconversion of doomed ships into fighting craft.

PREVENTS CONVERSION

Article XIV guards against conversion of merchantmen into war vessels except that it permits equipping such vessels for carrying six inch guns.

Article XV stipulates that a contracting power shall not build for a noncontracting power vessels exceeding the displacement and armament limitations allowed the five powers.

Article XVI makes it obligatory upon powers to furnish other powers all details in event they build war-craft for outsiders.

Article XVII prevents a nation from confiscating in event of war a ship in building for an outsider.

Article XVIII says "each of the contracting powers undertakes not to dispose by gift, sale or any mode of transfer of any vessel of war in such a manner that such vessel may become a vessel of war in the navy of any foreign power." This is meant to prevent a nation from turning a doomed ship over to a foreigner with the idea of getting it back later.

Article XIX provides for maintaining the status quo of fortifications and naval bases in the Pacific.

Article XX provides that methods of determining tonnage displacement shall apply to each power.

LISTS SHIPS

Then comes chapter II.

Chapter II, part one, gives the lists of ships which may be retained.

Chapter II, part two, covers scrapping rules. It says vessels must be run down and unit for combatant service either by sinking, breaking up, or target use.

Chapter II, part three, gives rules for replacement based upon substitution of new craft when the existing ships become 20 years of age. A subsection says "in case of loss or accidental destruction of capital ships or aircraft carriers, they may be, immediately replaced."

Replacement and scrapping tables follow.

Article XXI and XXII deal with action in event of war allowing for cancellation or suspension of treaty.

Under article XXIII, it is provided that the treaty shall run to Dec. 31, 1936. Provisions for cancellation are made.

Under article XXIV, it is noted that ratifications shall be made according to usual customs and copies of the ratifications shall be sent here as soon as possible.

NO ROAD BUILDING
THIS YEAR UNLESS
CEMENT IS CHEAP

Outagamie-co. Expected to Join
Boycott Against Cement
Manufacturers

Whether Outagamie-co. will proceed with making plans for its 1922 concrete highway building or will await the outcome of boycott measures now being applied to cement manufacturers by seven states, probably will be determined at the next regular meeting of the county road and bridge committee.

A. G. Brusewitz, county highway commissioner, who has just returned from the eleventh annual road school of the state highway commission in Madison in which this matter was thoroughly discussed is of the opinion that this county would not be justified in proceeding with plans for cement roads as long as the state has declared a boycott against cement manufacturers until they substantially lower cement prices. "It is my personal opinion," Mr. Brusewitz said, "that the county should stand behind the state in the attempt which Wisconsin and six other states are making to force down the price of cement. There is no question but that cement prices are too high in comparison with other prices."

"This county has never secured its supply of cement through the state. We have always handled this matter on our own by having the contractors furnish the cement and including this item in their bids for highway construction. Contractors and cement manufacturers are now anxious to know if we intend to build irrespective of the stand the state has taken. I don't believe it would be good policy for us to do so."

WAGES BIG ITEM

"In the discussion at Madison last week, the road builders were of the opinion that the present price of cement has no justification. Only common labor is required in the manufacture of cement. Wages for this class of labor are now down to the starvation mark. The slag out of which cement is made is so cheap that

"THE BAT" GRIPS
HUGE AUDIENCE

Mystery Play is Presented to
Two Large Theatre
Crowds Here

After sitting through more than two hours of mystery, thrills and excitement the immense audience in Appleton theatre Tuesday night breathed a gigantic sigh of relief when the identity of "The Bat," the principal character in the play of that name was revealed. It probably was the most intensely exciting and gripping play ever presented in Appleton.

The company, with possibly two exceptions, was good. The plot and the interest was well sustained and enough new elements of mystery were injected every few minutes to keep the audience in suspense.

No play in several years attracted quite so much attention as "The Bat." Every seat in the playhouse for the night performance was sold within a half hour after the opening of the seat sale and a matinee performance was necessary. The afternoon show attracted a well filled theatre.

The suspense in which the audience was held was relieved constantly by the splendid humor and funny situations of the play. Without that humor the plot would have been so exceedingly heavy that it would have become tiresome.

this certainly cannot be given as the reason for the continued high price.

"It would seem then that the cement makers have no leg left to stand on. If the cement price does not come down and the county road and bridge committee votes to halt concrete building in sympathy with the boycott declared by the state, it is possible that Outagamie-co. will do no road building the coming summer. The whole situation is up to the cement manufacturers because the sentiment expressed at the road school was strongly in opposition to buying cement until the price comes down even if no road building is done during the next year or two."

One of Our Leading Medi-

Overcome Such Conditions

This is the first time in history that a nutritive food tonic, backed by full approval of world-recognized scientific authority, has been offered to the public. It is called SUSTO.

It is transforming thousands of thin, run-down anemic men and women, and under-nourished, delicate children into strong, healthy, energetic individuals, all without the aid of medicine.

After exhaustive tests with SUSTO extending over many months by a Nutritional Expert at one of our leading Medical Colleges, he says that he proved SUSTO to be valuable for weak, run-down conditions, anemia, lack of strength, loss of weight, and especially valuable during convalescence; and infants, children and grown persons quickly put on weight by its use.

This means that any person may step into our drug store, ask for SUSTO, and for a small sum secure a tonic food that bears the stamp of approval of a great nutritional expert, to promote strength, health and energy.

By the use of SUSTO you will steadily gain in health and strength, eat better, sleep better, and enjoy the vitality which comes from a properly-nourished body.

18 WAR VETERANS PLACED IN JOBS BY SERVICE BUREAU

Oney Johnston Post Employment Office is Accomplishing Results

Of 25 former soldier applicants for jobs, the Oney Johnston American legion employment bureau has been successful in placing 18. Joseph Marston, Jr., director of the bureau, announced Monday.

From the time it became known that the local post was going to make a big effort to help legion men who were out of work, employers throughout the city have shown a wonderful spirit of cooperation. Mr. Marston said. So far no direct canvass of employers has been made for the purpose of securing positions for applicants and all who have hired men have done so voluntarily without persuasion.

The 18 men placed hold positions ranging from cost accountant to millworker, Mr. Marston said. With one or two exceptions all of them are Appleton men but the bureau makes no distinction between men here or of place of residence if they have a service record. While the work of the bureau thus far is considered satisfactory, Mr. Marston feels that if a few more employers who have work to offer would tell the bureau about it, it would be possible to place all applicants. Among the men who have not been placed are those who are in difficult straits and yet are competent and deserving.

U. S. TRACTOR CO. PLANS EXPANSION

J. M. Robinson, formerly of the International Harvester Co., has been elected president of the U. S. Tractor and Machinery Co. of Menasha which is making extensive plans to increase its production. Mr. Robinson already has taken up his work at Menasha. Additions to the plant include the erection and equipment of factory units and a foundry for manufacture of tractors and other farm machinery. Building operations will be started as soon as the weather permits.

It was said at the plant that the present expansion is due largely to the demand in foreign countries for its products.

ROTARIANS PICK GAY COLORS FOR CONVENTION GARB

Orange and Blue Capes, Caps and Gloves Will Distinguish Local Men

Appleton Rotarians who attend the district convention which is to be held in Duluth March 16 and 17 will wear a distinguishing garb of gay colors in the parades and the convention hall during the big meeting.

Members of the Appleton club who will attend the convention met for dinner Monday night in the Sherman house where plans were discussed for costume and souvenirs for the Duluth convention. It was decided that the Appleton Rotarians will go to Duluth garbed in long orange and blue capes, orange and blue caps and orange gloves with blue gauntlets. The capes, caps and gloves will be ordered from the Appleton Woolen Mills as soon as it can be determined how many men from this city will need them.

Paper souvenirs advertising Appleton will be spread broadcast over Duluth and songs are being arranged for the Appleton Rotarians to sing on the train going and coming, in the parades, the hotels and convention hall.

An active campaign to induce members of the Appleton club to go to Duluth is being carried on. Twenty men have agreed to attend but members of the club hope that 40 or 50 members will make the trip.

Members of the Rotary club met for regular luncheon Monday noon in the Sherman House. Judson Rosebush was the speaker. He told of his experiences in adjusting the labor troubles at the Northern Paper Mills in Green Bay. Short talks were made by members of the club to arouse enthusiasm for the Duluth convention and to induce more men from this city to make the trip.

Police Find Ruined Still In Junk Heap

If your house won't weather a storm of inspection by police and prohibition officers there's nothing like throwing the still overboard to lighten the ship.

Evidently this was the way one Appleton man figured out the situation when he read with consternation of the havoc local police are creating in their raids on homes in various parts of the city.

Just recently Officer Ford found a battered and dismantled home still lying in the bottom of the ravine at South River-st. It had been a pretty good still before its recent owner took the ax to it and there was quite a lot of good copper in it. Of course it bore no clues as to its recent ownership.

SOLD OLD PULPWOOD FOR DOLLAR A LOAD

Farmers in the vicinity of the plant of the Interlake Pulp and Paper Co., until this week when the supply became exhausted, were getting their wood for a dollar a load, but they were required to haul it themselves. The wood was in 12-foot lengths and had been piled up until it became worthless for pulp, but could be used for fuel. In order to make room for new wood the company decided to dispose of it at a sacrifice.

THE CLEARING HOUSE OF NATIONAL THOUGHT

Do you know that Uncle Sam conducts the largest printing-plant in the world? It requires five thousand people and a plant worth five million dollars to produce the printing utilized in operating the government. Then there is the seven million dollar building—one of the most beautiful in the world—housing the Library of Congress.

The story of the small beginnings of these two great institutions, their steady growth, and their present importance in the work of the nation, is told in an attractively illustrated folder of the series on Our Government now being issued by this Institution.

There has been a great demand for these stories and it is evident that they have been doing a valuable work in informing the people of this community about our government.

THE SETTLEMENT WITH CHINA

The agreement between Japan and China on Shantung marks the practical completion of the work of the Washington conference. A settlement touching China was essential to acceptance and ratification of the other treaties negotiated. It was necessary to make disarmament feasible, and above all it was an absolutely indispensable foundation for the four-power treaty defining rights and future policies in the Pacific.

The agreement between Japan and China provides for the restoration of Shantung to China. The railway controversy has been adjusted on the basis of a compromise proposed by Mr. Hughes and Mr. Balfour. China ultimately will come into complete control and administration of the province and its agencies of transportation. It is a significant fact that Japan and China were able to compose their differences without interference and with a minimum of suggestion by the western powers.

All of the agreements relating to China have in mind the development of Chinese sovereignty and the preservation of her territorial entity. Some of the difficulties which stood in the way of the immediate realization of complete political independence are to be met by gradual withdrawal, and in the meantime the powers are to associate themselves unselfishly for the advancement of this end. China comes out of the conference with all and more than she could have reasonably expected. She has her first real opportunity since Europe and Japan undertook to exploit and dismember her. The menace of partition is forever gone and China in due time will be master of her own destinies.

One of the marked features of the conference was the forbearance and reasonableness exhibited by Japan. Almost all of the concessions asked of Japan have been made and she has offered very little opposition to the main purposes sought to be achieved by the United States. As a matter of fact, she has been uniformly sympathetic toward the proposals submitted and her broad and unselfish attitude has had much to do with insuring the success of the conference. She adjusted the controversy over Yap to our satisfaction and the question of fortifications has been disposed of easily and to the general approval of all concerned.

The Washington conference is the most notable international gathering ever held for the promotion of peace and understanding, and its influence for good is almost beyond calculation.

THE RURAL PLANNING COMMITTEE

County Superintendent Florence Jenkins deserves the commendation of every resident of Outagamie county for encouraging the administration of the state rural planning law. A pride in one's county is an invaluable asset to county growth and prosperity. It is an incentive to every farmer to give his farm a neat and trim appearance, to grow products of the highest quality, to outdo neighboring counties in all manner and form of production. Outagamie county is already far famed for its natural beauty and its wealth of farms. To take advantage of and preserve the beauty spots along the highways and in historical places, to develop community centers, and to aid the general welfare of the country people is the intent and aim of the rural planning law.

The history of the settlement of our country shows that dire necessity forced the pioneers to get the greatest utility out of whatever they found where they established their homesteads. The first villages sprang up on the shores of navigable streams and lakes. Forests were cut down and the land left to take care of itself until all the natural clearings were in use. Roadways were constructed along the lines of least resistance superceding merely the worn footpaths and trails in many instances. No thought was given to what the country would look like a hundred years hence. Little did our forefathers seem to care if our streets were too narrow or our countryside parks conspicuous by their absence. Little did they imagine, perhaps, what the demands of the present age might be.

The people of Outagamie county should show their gratitude to the committee who will give their time and thought, without compensation, to the work of planning and preserving our rural community centers, the logical places for our highways, county parks, and recreation facilities. They should give their whole hearted cooperation to the movement by assisting in every possible manner to distinguish and make for the future of Outagamie county.

ADVERTISING LOCAL PRODUCTS AT HOME

The proposal to advertise Appleton and Fox river valley products to the residents of Appleton and the valley is worthy of the support of every manufacturing industry concerned. There is no question but what a greater home market will be created for home products, but aside from that, if all the people of the Fox river valley were well informed of the variety of products of the local manufacturers, they would themselves advertise those products broadcast. Rarely does a man travel abroad but what he is asked about the city in which he lives. Rarely is an Appleton man approached by a resident of some other part of the United States but what he is asked a few questions about Appleton and the Fox river valley. Advertising is not only a means of creating a desire. It is also a means of distributing information, which in turn either directly or indirectly creates the desire.

If an advertising campaign were conducted to inform local people of the variety and merits of local products it would therefore have a two-fold result. It would stimulate the local market for these products and would have a far reaching effect on all outside markets by instilling a local pride in local industry.

CIVILIZING WARFARE

We do not know if it is possible to make war humane. War itself smacks of barbarism, and efforts to confine it to so-called civilized standards are subject to more or less qualification. We may set up rules of warfare but if a nation is fighting for its life, with its back to the wall, it probably will use any methods or means it can to save itself. This would be particularly true in case of another life and death struggle like that which commenced in 1914. In a gentleman's conflict, as when Spain and the United States fought, it is easy enough not to hit below the belt, but where national existence is at stake necessity knows few laws.

All the same, the proposals to outlaw the submarine and to prohibit poisonous gas are notable advances in the movement to civilize war. The submarine is the most execrable war machine ever invented. It is a vessel of assassination, a highwayman of the seas, a sinking, cowardly destroyer of women, children and non-combatants. The adoption of the Root regulations governing the submarine practically forbids its use in future wars, and since this is the case there should be no objection to reducing the tonnage of submarines to a nominal figure. If it is impractical to use submarines as commerce destroyers without violating the laws of civilization, there is obviously little or no need for them at all.

In addition to classifying the submarine as a pirate, the five-power agreement forbids the use of gas, another dastardly instrument of massacre which threatened, if ever resorted to again, to exterminate whole armies and possibly whole nations. Its banishment along with the outlawing of the submarine is a triumph of christianity.

The Baby Comes In

That three-month-old baby at Ellis Island, whose Polish mother was entitled to admission as a formal resident of the United States, will also be admitted. Secretary Davis sees to that. He, recognizing the absurdity of the rigid rule of the quota, which in strict application would separate parents from children, states that he will never make a decision that will have that effect. It is gratifying to know that this humane, sensible view is taken by the head of the immigration service. The fact, however, remains that strictly speaking the law would keep that baby out. The most important part involved in this case is that it illustrates the possibilities of the law. The consequence test rather than the numerical quota would be a safer basis of exclusion and admission. The Secretary of Labor, charged with the duty of administering the law, has nothing to do with what it might be or what it should be. He has to take it as it has been written by Congress, and the administration of this statute Secretary Davis has fortunately displayed a broad spirit of humanity and consideration.—WASHINGTON STAR (Ind.)

EGG ASTHMA

Subjects of true spasmodic bronchial asthma, which is severe difficulty in breathing occurring at irregular intervals, and not permanent or constant difficulty in breathing, are wont to blame our old friend the weather, or climate considerably. It is quite as reasonable to assume that weather, climate or atmospheric conditions generally may have a bearing on the precipitating factor in asthma as it is to think the state of the weather or the character of the climate has some influence on one's temperamental behavior, but that is as far as the weather or climate should go in the premises.

"A friend of mine has asthma," writes a reader. "He averts he never has an attack unless he has been near a cat. I think this idea about cats is largely imagination. However, I am open to conviction if the idea is corroborated by a reliable or competent physician."

Here is an instance from a recent scientific essay on asthma by Dr. Warfield T. Longcope of New York:

"In one of our sthmatics, a boy aged six, violent cutaneous reactions" (that is to skin tests) "were obtained to the serums of many domestic animals. It was thought, therefore, that his asthma was probably caused by inhalation of the hairs and epidermal dust from dogs and cats. Even when he was isolated from these animals, the asthma was not relieved. A further study showed that he gave a skin reaction, the only after intradermal injections" (that is injection into, not under, the skin, rather than mere application of the protein solution to a scratch) "to white of egg. Eggs were therefore eliminated from his diet, and the asthma ceased immediately. He was then treated by the feeding of dried egg white in capsules, beginning with one milligram (approximately one sixtieth of a gram) and increasing gradually until he took one cooked egg a day. He has been able now for four years to eat an egg daily without reappearance of the asthma."

To be sure, the inhalation of cat dandruff may excite an asthmatic seizure in an individual who happens to be sensitive to that peculiar protein. But there is nothing imaginary about such an attack. Dogs, chickens or their feathers, geese feathers (as in feather pillows), hares, parrots, canary birds, and other creatures or their emanations may excite asthma. Physicians nowadays test individuals for the peculiar sensitization which renders them susceptible to these accidental or casual protein poisons, not alone in asthma, but in many other cases where there are acute wheezing attacks from various plants, to determine the specific pollen responsible.

It is a common history, according to Dr. Longcope, in asthma cases, that as a child, the patient had eczema, possibly associated with attacks of hives. Hives is certainly excited by this peculiar poisoning of the sensitized or susceptible individual with some simple protein substance in food or from some external source as in asthma. Again, the patient may have had hay fever at puberty or thereafter, which grew a little worse annually and finally merged into characteristic seizures of bronchial or spasmodic asthma. Sometimes it is learned that the patient in infancy vomited the first egg white and was in variably upset by egg, so that egg was omitted, but a few years later eczema or hives occurred, when a quantity of egg was taken unwittingly, as in cake, salad dressing, ice cream or some other dish.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Should Use Crow Bar

Please tell me how to remove wax from the ear. In trying to remove some from my ear with the round end of a hair pin I only pushed it in against the drum and now the hearing is shut off. I have always been very careful never to use any sharp instrument in the ear.—(M. S. F.)

Answer—Always be careful not to insert any object whatever in the ear. It may be removed by syringing the ear with a few quarts of comfortably warm water with a tablespoonful of saleratus dissolved in each quart, from a reservoir or fountain syringe hung not more than two feet above the level of the ear and directed straight down into the ear canal but not inserted in the ear. If this fails to bring away the hardened mass, do not tamper with the ear further, but go to the doctor and let him remove it.

Dandruff

I have been advised that bay rum is a good cure for dandruff. How often do you think it would be necessary to apply?—(F. F.)

Answer—It may be dissolved in each ounce of the bay rum five grains of salicylic acid—and if your hair is not very white, gray or blond—10 grains of resorcin, and rub a few drops into the scalp daily, that will be often enough. If this makes the scalp or hair too dry, add about five drops of castor oil to each ounce.

Don't Sift Baby's Tongue

Would you advise me to take a three years old child to a doctor to have her tongue cut loose a little? It seems as if she talks a little tongue tied.—(Mrs. J. J.)

Answer—There is no such condition. The expression "tongue tied" as applied to faults of speech, is figurative and it would be regrettable to take it literally. To be sure, now and then a newborn infant has a shortened frenum, which holds the tongue down on the floor of the mouth enough to interfere with sucking, and that may require cutting. But never does any such condition account for a defect of speech. Tongue slitting and gum landing for teething babies are two barbarities which never should have been perpetrated in a civilized community.

Resume of American and Foreign Newspaper Opinion

China's More Or Less "Open Door"

By the infusion of a tonic in the form of the definite program for "making the open door in China a fact instead of a motto," Secretary Hughes has effectively stimulated the sluggish pulses and low respiration of the Far East Conference just at the moment when, according to the BROOKLYN EAGLE (Ind. Dem.), "observers were predicting that little or nothing was to be accomplished in ment among nations prohibiting the establishment of 'any special rights or privileges in China which would abridge the rights of the subjects or citizens of any friendly nation.' To make that doctrine an actuality instead of a phrase the head of the American delegation to the conference made four proposals by which, the HARTFORD TIMES (Dem.) remarks, 'he put the good faith of the powers to the test.' The conference adopted three of them, the result as the WATERBURY (Conn.) REPUBLICAN (Rep.) gives it, being that the delegates 'pledge the nations not to seek spheres of influence or monopoly in China in the future, and provide for an international board of reference to which may be referred differences regarding future concessions and leases for 'Investigation.' The American policy gains 'only a partial victory in the endorsement which is received from the conference delegates as the WHEELING INTELLIGENCER (Rep.) points out, because the important fourth article was 'withdrawn' upon Japan's objection. This article, which in the opinion of many American editors is the only one that can make for a real 'open door' in China, 'gives the powers to a review of 'existing concessions,' and for the submission of any of them which appeared inconsistent with other concessions or with other concessions or with the principle of equal opportunity 'to a board of reference to the purpose of endeavoring to arrive at a satisfactory adjustment on equitable terms.' The Japanese interpretation of the open door, as advanced by Baron Shidehara and reported by the NEW YORK TIMES (Ind. Dem.), implies 'that the door will be open to trade on equal terms in those parts of China which have already been reserved for the exclusive profit and behoof of Japan, and other powers. Thus 'the past is secure,' the PHILADELPHIA RECORD (Ind. Dem.) says, for with the abandonment of any attempt at retroaction 'the Hughes resolution will not touch China.'"

Article four was withdrawn 'without prejudice,' it is reported, and may later be considered, but it is by no means 'so unimportant' as its abandonment without protest suggests, the NEW YORK GLOBE (Ind.) holds. Mr. Hughes acknowledged, that declaration, however, that the concessions contained in his resolution were accepted in 1900 by all the powers, including Japan, and the opinion of the GLOBE it naturally follows 'that the application of these principles to the concessions obtained between 1900 and 1922 would not be unfair. MRS. MINA RABER, Aurora, Ill.

"A short time ago I was one of the most nervous and miserable persons on the earth, but thanks to Tanlac I'm well and happy now," said Mrs. Mina Raber, 446 Farnsworth Ave., Aurora, Ill.

"It was just about two years ago that I began to be distressed after every meal. I had awful smothering spells at times and my heart beat so irregularly that I often thought I wouldn't live through the attack. Headaches were the bane of my existence and I shudder even now when I think of them. My back hurt me, too, and it was just agony for me to bend over and straighten up again. "Tanlac has done for me far more than I ever expected and I'm like a different person altogether. In fact, I'm in perfect health now. In my opinion, Tanlac is the best medicine under the sun."

Mighty Few People Have To Cook For Sick Here

If the number of invalid cookery recipes which have been sent to the contest editor during this week are an indication of the number of people who have had to cook for sick folk here, the contest for sick folk here would be a record of the world. Comparatively few recipes to tempt the lagging appetite of the sick, near sick or near well have come in. Other contest weeks have found the contest editor under a sea of envelopes, but this week has been almost a rest cure. So along your recipe before Thursday noon and it will compete for the prize.

Just pass along the good word to the many expert candy makers in the city, that at noon on Thursday candy week begins. Prizes for that big event have not been definitely decided but it is more than likely that there will be a fudge prize and another for other sorts of candy.

Here is another dozen or so of pies for your perusal:

PIE CRUST
1 large cup flour
1/2 cup shortening
1 egg beaten light
1 pinch of salt
Mix flour and salt together with shortening. Then add your beaten egg. This makes a very nice flaky, crust and lovely for tarts. This will make enough for two crusts.

BUTTER SCOTCH PIE
Make pie crust above. Bake in two tins and make filling of 2 cups brown sugar, add 2 heaping tablespoons flour, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 cups milk, pinch salt, boil together. Mix sugar, flour, salt, add milk and let boil until thick, stir constantly, last of all, beat in two beaten egg yolks, then pour in baked crust. Beat whites of eggs stiff, add 1/2 cup white sugar, spread over filling, put in oven.—Mrs. George Allwardt, South Kaukauna.

LEMON PIE
1 1/2 cup sugar
2 lemons, rind of one half.
2 1/2 cups water
Boil five minutes, then strain to remove seeds and the grated rind. Put back to boil, when boiling add 2 heaping tablespoons corn starch dissolved in a little water, when thick remove from fire, add the yolk of three eggs, then pour in baked pie crusts, and cover with the whites of eggs beaten stiff, to which 1/2 cup sugar has been added. Put in oven to brown. When adding 1 teaspoon full of cold water to your egg whites when you are beating, you will produce a large amount of froth.—Mrs. George Allwardt, South Kaukauna.

BUTTERSCOTCH PIE
1 1/2 cup boiling water
1/2 cup brown sugar
4 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon butter
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
3 eggs
Boil brown sugar and water thoroughly, and then thicken it with the salt and flour, mixed with enough cold water to moisten. Stir constantly until the mixture thickens. Then add the butter and pour the mixture in to egg yolks which have been slightly beaten. Pour into the baked pastry shell and cover with a meringue made as follows:
The whites of three eggs beaten stiff, adding a few drops of lemon extract or juice and three tablespoons of powdered sugar. All measurements are level.—Miss Rose Gerhardt, Black Creek.

PRUNE PIE
Take 2 cups of stewed, sweetened prunes, chopped or cut up in little bits and pits removed. Add 1/2 cup sugar, yolks of 2 eggs, 1 tablespoon cornstarch. Put in a stew pan and stir in cornstarch until thick. Cool, cinnamon flavoring. Have your crust baked, put in your filling when cooled some. Beat the whites of the eggs, add 1 tablespoon sugar and put over the top. Be sure and bake crust first.—Mrs. Lena Buchman, 811 North-st.

RAISIN PIE
1 cup seeded raisins, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup sour cream. Chop raisins slightly, combine ingredients and bake between two crusts in a moderate oven.—Mrs. George F. Wefner, 656 Law-st.

SOUR CREAM PIE
1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg, yolks of 2 eggs, 1 cup sour cream, 2 cups chopped raisins, 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon. Mix together well. Flour bottom of unbaked crust, bake in but I like to serve with whipped cream.

PIE CRUST
1 large cup flour
1/2 cup shortening
1 egg beaten light
1 pinch salt
—Mrs. George Allwardt.

LEMON RAISIN PIE
One cup seeded chopped raisins
1 lemon
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup sugar
Bake with upper and under crust

BUTTER SCOTCH PIE
1 heaping cup dark brown sugar
1 tablespoon butter
2 tablespoons hot water
Boil this as for candy while mixing custard part.

BANANA CREAM PIE
Yolks of 2 eggs, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 1/2 cup sugar, 1 pint milk, butter size of walnut, cook until thick, put in layer of cooked custard into crust, then another layer of sliced bananas, then another layer of custard, bake. Frost with whites of eggs and brown in slow oven.—Mrs. C. Fenstermaker, South Kaukauna.

MINCE MEAT
2 lbs. lean beef (round steak), 1 lb. suet, 5 lbs. apples (all), 1 lb. seed-cd raisins, 2 lbs. currants, 3/4 lb. cut-iron chopped fine, 2 tablespoons cinnamon, 1 nutmeg, or 1 teaspoon ground, 1 tablespoon cloves, salt, allspice, 2 1/2 cups brown sugar, 1 quart sweet cider and 1 pint fruit juice, cherry or brandy if preferred. Boil well till apples are tender, being very careful not to let burn. This is very good and reasonable.—Mrs. A. Briesse, 515 Franklin-st.

FRESH RHUBARB PIE
Two cups dried rhubarb, 4 tablespoons flour, mix rhubarb and flour in a dish thoroughly. Take 1 1/2 cups sugar, yolk of two eggs, 1 tablespoon sweet milk, beat well, pour over rhubarb, put all of contents in a crust lined pie tin. Bake 1/2 hour. Flavor cinnamon, take whites of 2 eggs, beat stiff, add 1 tablespoon sugar. Pour over top of pie in a rough way so it looks like whipped cream. Brown in oven for a few minutes. Home canned rhubarb can be used but it is not so good as fresh.—Mrs. Lena Buchman, 811 North-st.

RHUBARB PIE
Line pie tin with pie crust. Cut three quarts rhubarb in squares or enough to fill two tins. 1 pour boiling water over my rhubarb and let stand until cool then drain through colander. Fill crust and sprinkle just a little flour and sugar, then beat four eggs light and add 1 cup sugar. Pour over rhubarb and bake until done. You can eat it like that

Science Now Shows Why Thousands of People Are Always Weak, Thin, and Run-Down No Matter How Much They Eat

What to Do to Help Put on Good Firm Flesh, Increase Weight, and Obtain a More Beautiful Form and Figure

Get a FREE $1.00 Package of Genuine Yeast Vitamins Tablets Today as Explained Below — Try Them for Ten Days and Watch the Results

Science has at last shown how we sometimes grow weak, thin, and emaciated on an abundance of food (lacking in vitamins) while with a much smaller amount of food, rich in vitamins, we may quickly take on good firm flesh, increase in weight, and make a remarkable gain in strength, energy and endurance, provided your blood contains sufficient quantity of oxygenated iron to enable your body to assimilate your food properly.

Without organic iron both food and vitamins are absolutely useless as your body cannot change lifeless inert food matter into living cells and tissue unless you have plenty of organic iron in your blood.

For centuries scientists tried in vain to make organic iron. At last the problem was solved so that you may now obtain pure organic iron like the iron in your blood from any drugist under the name of "Nuxated Iron".

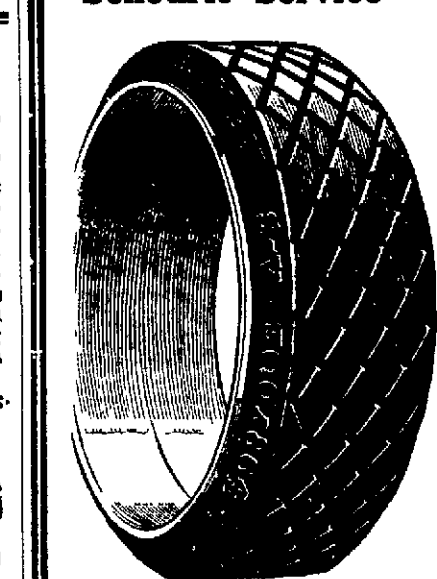

It has been arranged to give to every purchaser of Nuxated Iron, who wishes to put on flesh or increase weight, a large regular $1.00 package of Genuine Yeast Vitamins Tablets absolutely free. Be sure to take only Nuxated Brand Yeast Vitamins Tablets with Nuxated Iron.

DO NOT BE MISLED BY IMITATIONS WHICH OFTEN CONTAIN DRUGS.

GUNSIGHT PASS

by WILLIAM MACLEOD RAINES

BEGIN HERE TODAY

DAVE SANDERS, youthful range rider with the D Bar Lazy R outfit, is fooled into matching the speed of his pet pony, Chiquito, against that of a race horse owned by AD MILLER, a gambler. Miller and his confederate, GEORGE DOBLE, the latter a half-brother of DUG DOBLE, the ranch foreman, win heavily from the cowboys when Chiquito is beaten. After the race, George Doble picks a quarrel with Dave. Dave intercedes and is attacked by Miller. Dug Doble separates them.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

"What's eaten you, Sanders?" he demanded curtly.

"He ripped me with his spurs," Miller said sulkily.

"I had to turn him loose," Dave looked down at the man's legs. His trousers were torn to shreds. Blood trickled down the lacerated calves where the spurs had roweled the flesh cruelly. No wonder Miller had suddenly lost interest in the fight.

The two gamblers packed their race-horse, saddled, and rode away without a word to any of the range-riders.

CHAPTER IV

The next morning Dave roped his mount and rode out to meet Chiquito. The pinto was an aristocrat in his company, was a little disdainful of the company that had no accomplishments. Usually he grazed a short distance from the remuda, together with one of Bob Hart's string.

Dave's whistle brought no nicker of joy, no thud of hoofs galloping out of the darkness to him. No answer came to his call. At a canter he cut across the plain to Bob Hart. "Found 'em?" shouted Dave when he was close enough to be heard.

"No, and we won't—not this side of Malapi. Those scoundrels didn't make camp last night. They kept movin' yet, and they've got our broncs with 'em."

"This had already occurred to Dave as a possibility. "Any proof?" he asked quietly.

"A-plenty. Three-four times we cut trail of five horses. Two of the five are being ridden. My Four-Bits hoss has got a broken front hoof. So has one of the five."

"Movin' fast, are they?" "You're dam whistlin'. They're hivin' off for parts unknown. Malapi first off, looks like. They got friends there."

"Steelman and his outfit will protect them while they hunt cover and make a getaway."

"He was probably lyin'. You can't tell. Point is, we've got to get busy. My notion is we'd better make a bee-line for Malapi right away," proposed Bob.

"We'll travel all night. No use wastin' any more time."

Within an hour they were on the road.

In the late afternoon they rode back to the trail through a draw, the ponies wading fetlock deep in yellow, red, blue, and purple flowers. The mountains across the valley looked in the dry heat as though made of papier-mache.

CHAPTER V

The two D Bar Lazy R punchers ate supper at Delmonico's. The restaurant was owned by Wong Chung. A Cantonese celestial did the cooking and another waited on table. The price of a meal was twenty-five cents, regardless of what one ordered.

Dave helped himself to bread from a plate stacked high with thick slices. He buttered it and began to eat. Hart did the same. Just about to attack a second slice, Dave stopped to stare at his companion. Hart was looking past his shoulder with alert intensity. Dave turned his head. Two men, leaving the restaurant, were peering the cashiers.

The men were George Doble and a cowpuncher known as Shorty, a broad, heavy-set little man who worked for Bradley Steelman, owner of the Rocking Horse Ranch.

They paid their bill and passed into the street. Immediately the sound of a clear, high voice arrested their attention. It vibrated indignation and dread.

"What have you done with my father?" came sharply to them on the wings of the soft night wind.

A young woman was speaking. She was in a buggy and was talking to two women on the sidewalk—the two women who had preceded the range-riders out of the restaurant.

"Why, Miss, we ain't done a thing to him—nothin' a-tall." The man Shorty was speaking, and in a tone of honeyed conciliation.

"That's a lie." The voice of the girl broke for an instant to sob. "Do you think I don't know you?" Do Steelman's handy man, that you do his meanness for him when he snaps his fingers?"

"Is your paw missin'? I'm right sorry to hear that," the cowpuncher countered with suave irony. His glance followed Doble, who was moving slowly down the street.

The girl's face, white and shining in the moonlight, leaned out of the buggy toward the retreating vaquero. "Don't you dare hurt my father! Don't you dare!" she warned. The words choked in her tense throat.

Shorty continued to back away. "You're excited, Miss. You'll be sorry you talked this way to me," he said with unctuous virtue. Then he turned and went straddling down the walk.

Quickly Dave gave directions to his friend, "Duck back into the restaurant, Bob. Get a pocketful of dry rice from the kitchen. Trail those birds to their nest and find where they roost. Scatter rice behind you, and I'll drift along later. First off, I got to stay and talk with Miss Joyce.

A moment later Hart was in the restaurant commandeering rice and Sanders was lifting his dusty hat to the young woman in the buggy.

"If I can help you any, Miss Joyce," he said.

Beneath dark and delicate brows she frowned at him. "Who are you?" "Dave Sanders my name is. I reckon you never heard tell of me. I punch cows for yore father."

Her burning, hazel brown eyes steamed in his, read the honesty of his simple, boyish heart.

"You heard what I said to that man?" "Part of it."

"Well, it's true. I know it is, but I can't prove it."

"How do you know it?" "Steelman's men have been watching our house. This man Shorty was one."

"Any special reason for the feud to break out right now?" "Father was going to prove up on a claim this week—the one that takes in the Tularosa water-holes. Don't you think maybe they're trying to keep from proving up?"

"Maybeso. When did you see him last?"

Her lip trembled. "Night before last. After supper he started for the Cattleman's club, but he never got there."

"Looks like some of Brad Steelman's smooth work," admitted Dave.

"If he could work yore father to sign a relinquishment—"

Fire flickered in her eye. "He'd ought to know Dad better."

"What's more, it wouldn't be their play to injure him, but to force a relinquishment," continued Dave.

"That's true. You believe that, don't you?" Joyce cried eagerly.

"That man who just passed is my friend," he told her. "He's trailin' that duck Shorty. Like as not we'll find out what's stirrin'."

"I'll go with you," the girl said, vivid lips parted in anticipation.

"No, you go home. Soon as I find out anything I'll let you know."

"You'll come, no matter what time a night it is," she pleaded.

"Yes," he promised.

CHAPTER VI

The trail of rice led down Mission Street, turned at Junipero, crossed into an alley, and trickled along a dusty road to the outskirts of the frontier town.

Doble and Miller were small fish in the swirl of this more desperate venture. Dave knew Brad Steelman by sight and by reputation. The man's coffee-brown, hatched face, the slope of nose and chin, combined to give him the look of a predatory wolf. Suspected of many crimes, he had been proved guilty of none.

A soft, low whistle stayed Dave's feet. From behind a bush Bob rose and beckoned.

"The Doble house over to the right," said Bob. "I been up and tried to look in, but they got curtains drawn."

They made a wide circuit and approached the house from the rear. Dave crept forward and tried the door. It was locked. The window was latched, and the blind lowered.

"How about the roof?" asked Hart. Dave's eyes lit.

"What's the matter with takin' a whirl at it?" his partner continued. "You're tophand with a rope."

"Suits me fine."

The rope snaked forward and up, settling gracefully over the chimney.

Dave slipped off his high-heeled boots and went up hand over hand. In another moment he was huddled against the chimney waiting for his companion.

As soon as Hart joined him he pulled up the rope and wound it round the chimney.

Dave clung down the roof to the nearest dormer.

It was a casement window, and at the touch of the hand it gave way. The heart of the cowpuncher beat fast with excitement. In the shadowy darkness of that room death might be lurking. Its hand already outstretched toward him. He peered in, accustomed his eyes to the blackness. A pricking of the skin ran over him. For he knew that, though he could not yet make out the objects inside the room, his face must be like a framed portrait to anybody there.

Dave eased himself over the sill and waited a moment while he listened, the revolver in his hand. It seemed to him that he could hear a faint murmur of voices, but he was not sure. He moved across the bare plank floor, slid through the door and again stopped to take stock of his surroundings.

23-Year-Old Girl Wants To Be Governor Of Kansas

Helen Pettigrew, Former Shop Girl, Seeks Election on Peace Platform

Kansas City, Kan., — "No more war!" With that three word platform, Helen Pettigrew, former shop girl, has entered the race for the Republican nomination for governor of Kansas.

And a strange political situation gives her a chance to sit in the gubernatorial chair, politicians say. "Man is the root cause of war," Miss Pettigrew says. "The world is dying of war disease. The last war made 8,000,000 cripples. If you want this stopped, then stop voting for corrupt male politicians who encourage this monstrous atrocious crime to serve their own ends."

Miss Pettigrew was graduated a few years ago from the public schools of Springfield, Ill.

Then she came here with her parents. Her father is a building contractor. He's never taken an active part in politics.

Until a year ago Miss Pettigrew was a salesgirl in a big department store here. Then she became interested in combating war.

She began giving lectures. She found this more interesting and lucrative than acting as a salesgirl, so she abandoned her downtown position.

She became founder and head of the Anti-War Association with branches in all parts of Kansas. She gained the approval of congressmen and other political leaders.

Then came her campaign for the Republican nomination at the forthcoming primaries.

The Republican nomination practically means election. For the Republican candidate usually carries this state by 100,000 votes or more.

The political situation here favors Miss Pettigrew.

IN POLITICS

HELEN PETTIGREW

There are 25 or 30 candidates for Republican nomination with hats in the ring.

There's no outstanding candidate. Henry J. Allen, present governor, says he'll not be a candidate for reelection.

So the lighting is just as likely to strike Miss Pettigrew as anyone else. And she is making a far more active fight than most of her opponents.

The primaries will be held in August. Other candidates are holding up their campaigns until spring.

But Miss Pettigrew's touring the state. And her platform is winning support.

RUSSIANS EAGER TO LEARN STEPS OF THE FOX TROT

American Relief Workers Introduce Weird Steps to Moscow Dancers

By EDWIN W. HULLINGER

Moscow. — Moscow, home of the ballet and famed center of Russian dancing, wants to learn to fox trot and one step, latest American style. From ballet dancers to former princesses and former manufacturer's daughter's to janitor's daughters every girl in Moscow has one great social ambition—to learn to fox trot. From former grand duke's son to shop workers, every bright young man in Moscow wants to learn to fox trot—as a sure way to the heart of his "galoucheuse" (darling).

The blockade which for seven years prevented food and clothing from getting to Russia, also kept out the fox trot. Word that it existed had gotten through, but no one in Moscow knew how to dance it, until the arrival of the A. R. A. with its staff of fifty fox-trotting college boys.

The A. R. A. brought the fox trot to Russia.

And during their off-hours, the aforementioned fifty young philanthropists could easily keep busy (many of them do) introducing ballet dancers or princesses alike, as the case may be, to the mystic steps and rhythm of Broadway.

For the first time in four years, the young people of Moscow were beginning to dance. Hitherto there has been little chance to dance, even had they felt in the mood. There were no cafes, no social soirees given by employees of dancing halls, no parties for private dances, with the exception of occasional Soviet departments.

Also the people who used to do the dancing were busy all day at their posts, after which they had to walk home—three quarters of an hour, an hour or two hours walk, as the case might be, at the end of which they were too tired to want to dance. Nor the Revolution and the Spirit of Dance make overly good partners under any circumstances.

This winter the cafes are re-opening although as yet few have dancing floors. The presence of foreign missions—the British, American, Polish, German, and other social centers around which native Russians are gathering hungry for a little pleasure.

FOREIGN GRACE IN THIS DRESS

By MARY BROOKS PICKEN

An exponent of the silhouette that is of Spanish inspiration but with a color scheme and decoration that is decidedly French, this fascinating evening frock of French blue tulle, silver lace and pink roses is one that the youthful American type would grace with especial charm. Evidently the skirt is divided in allegiance between the extremely short length that was adopted with so much enthusiasm some time ago and the longer skirt that many designers recognize as being correct, for by means of a band of pink tulle it aspires to the newer decree, while at the same time it keeps a conservative hold on the popular length that the scalloped edge indicates.

Polly and Paul--and Paris

Chapter 20—A Flank Movement in Stoves

By ZOE BECKLEY

Violet Rand's apartment made Paul think of a lace-hung, jewel-decked handbox—if such a thing were conceivable. It was so small that Paul could almost have touched the four walls of any room by standing in the middle of it. Yet by clever furnishing and discreet spaces here and there Violet had contrived to give an effect of distance.

The windows of the tiny drawing-room, like all French windows, opened from the middle outward, like doors, and were hung with several sets of curtains in cream lace and old blue brocade.

There was a baby grand piano—the smallest Paul had ever seen—made of light wood, gilt-bedecked; two blue upholstered easy chairs in cozy proximity; a blue chaise-longue with small lace-and-embroidery pillows; a table littered with American magazines and French novels; vases of crystal holding pale yellow roses; and a tea-wagon temptingly set out with toast and jam and little cakes.

An air of coquetry and seclusion pervaded the place and a maid, petite like the flat, came and went softly without glancing at the visitors.

It seemed strange to Paul drinking tea in that bijou place at 4 of a business afternoon, but he liked the novelty and was very comfortable in Violet's blue armchair munching eclairs and consuming cups of lemon tea while his hostess chatted amiably.

The other guest, Rigaud, was a big man with prominent eyes and crisp black hair. He had suave manners, was cultured and traveled and showed his knowledge of the world in every word he spoke.

Deftly Violet brought their talk around to the personal issue. Paul was amazed how she contrived it without seeming to enter their discussion at all, and soon he and Rigaud were in the full tide of technical debate. Factory heating and intricacies of combustion and radiation seemed odd topics for that dollhouse drawing room, but Paul knew he was making a favorable impression on the big man, and was happy in his element. That he spoke in French pleased Rigaud greatly.

It was well after 6 before Paul realized it and started to take his leave. Violet signaled that it was time for the "social overture" in which she had already schooled him.

"It would give us very much pleasure Monsieur Rigaud," he began in his most urbane manner, "to have you dine with us—my wife and I are staying at the Regence, but I'm sure there are more interesting places in your fascinating Paris."

"Rigaud knows every restaurant from Montmartre to the Bout Miché," put in Violet. "Choose a nice cozy place, Rigaud, to talk stoves in!"

"Yes!" beamed Rigaud, "I want to talk more stoves. Will you, Monsieur Dawson, and your charming wife permit me to call for you at 7 on Thursday? I have in mind a small, quiet place where they have a famous dish—coquilles. Boulognaise? You will like it."

Violet accompanied Paul to the door.

"You've made a hit—I knew you would. Now all you have to do is jolly him along, and sell a few million dollars worth of your precious stoves!" It's up to Mrs. Paul, remember, to put the whole thing over. Good night."

Paul flung himself into the first taxicab he met and offered an extra tip for speed. He could hardly wait to tell Polly.

COACHES DECLARE WAR ON PROFESSIONAL FOOTBALL

ILLINOIS GRID SCANDAL STIRS MEN TO ACTION

Collegiate Athletic Officials Swear to Make Fight to Finish

By Henry L. Farrell.
By United Press Leased Wire.
New York—Aroused by the football scandal in the midwest resulting in the disqualification of nine University of Illinois athletes and eight football coaches, collegiate athletic officials are swearing a war to the end on professional football.

What weapon to use in doing the "paid game" to death is one of the hardest problems to solve.

Western conference bodies, who long ago started a campaign for clean athletics have found that taking a varsity letter away from an offender does not threaten a penalty dangerous enough to overcome the lure of some easy money.

Perhaps a "dishonorable discharge" from school would make unthoughtful athletes look twice before they took the jump.

If any band of students went out and brought disgrace upon their university by some act against the civil or criminal code they would be expelled without second thought.

WARRANTS SEVERE PENALTY
The act of the Illinois and Notre Dame stars, casting a serious blot on the sportsmanship of their universities, is just as much a disgrace and warrants a penalty just as heavy.

Perhaps none of the players were paid. However, they are all old enough and should have mental power enough to know that they were doing wrong. They admit they know it but thought they could get away with it.

Notre Dame and Illinois will have little more than sympathy for the reward on athletes' fields perhaps for several years to come.

Notre Dame particularly is hit hard. There isn't a regular left for Kneute Rockne to build his 1922 eleven around, his track team, his baseball team and his basketball quintet are shot to pieces. All of it came just as he was about to get the crowning reward for years of hard work.

SPORT VIEWS AND NEWS

Coach Rockne of Notre Dame is going to "carry on" despite the fact that the majority of the sport teams have been swept into the discard on account of professionalism. Rockne is no piker and he can be counted on to turn out some teams that will be a credit to his institution. Just an even dozen Notre Dame stars are now in the background and there is no doubt but that their places will be filled by "Rock" isn't going to quit trying.

Fond du Lac is going basketball crazy. The success of the Cardinal quintet on the court during the past month has kicked up a lot of interest down Pondy Way and the fans are clamoring for a game with the Milwaukee Bright Spots or other aggregations of the same class.

Jack ... is going back to his old love, T ... n football coach has accepted ... to handle the back-field ... at Dartmouth again this fall. It was at this college where Ryan made his "rep" as a successful mentor. We think that the longer Ryan is away from Marquette, the more the Milwaukee Catholics will miss him. Ryan did wonders with the material available at the Hilton institution and, if some of the faculty experts had let him alone he would be there yet.

CARL VAN WURDEN TO MEET YOUNG ZBYSZKO

Carl VanWurden, well known to Appleton wrestling fans, will meet Young Zbyszko in a finish grappling match in Oshkosh Wednesday evening. The men will struggle to a finish with no time limit and will go for the best two out of three falls. VanWurden and Zbyszko have been training hard and are in shape for a gruelling battle. Oshkosh promoters will make an effort to sell Champion Meyers for a winner of the bout.

STAGG THINKS MAROONS HAVE CLEAN RECORDS

Chicago—None of the Maroon athletes have played professional ball as charged in vague reports. In the opinion of Coach A. A. Stagg, who Wednesday issued a statement in which he asked for any evidence against any of the athletes, Stagg said further that if any case was proven to him he would disbar the men from further participation in athletics.

BASEBALL FANS BEGIN THINKING OF 1922 LEAGUE

Diamond Rumblings Heard Up and Down Fox River Valley—Plan Circuit

Although the basketball season is now in full swing and warm weather is a long way off, preparations of the big league clubs to start for training camps has brought the "Hot Stove League" to life and baseball rumblings are beginning to be heard up and down the Fox river valley, but little is actually known about the baseball situation as it shapes up for the coming season. There has been some activity at Oshkosh, Fond du Lac, Appleton and Green Bay, but very little progress has been made towards the formation of a baseball circuit.

Green Bay magnates are beginning to get busy on plans for the season. They want a compact circuit composed of teams in the valley with short jumps between cities to keep traveling expenses down to the minimum. It was the high cost of the trip that came mighty near putting the Lake Shore league on the rocks last year.

Menasha is ready to put a team in the field, according to rumors in baseball circles. If these reports are true, it means that five cities are set for the proposed circuit and that only one team more is needed to complete a compact loop.

NOT MUCH NEWS

The backers of the proposed league have not been letting out any news for the consumption of the fans around the "Hot Stove" league. This is unfortunate because a little dope now and then about the circuit would start interest booming even in this cold weather.

Other leagues in the state are already preparing for basketball season. President Hedding of the Lake Shore circuit has started the ball rolling and is hot on the trail of teams to take the places of Green Bay and Two Rivers.

The Central Wisconsin and Tri-County leagues have already made known their plans for the diamond season. Some of these teams have even gone so far as to sign up players and when it is time to play ball they will be all set to go.

Appleton Elks to Have Fifty Teams in Tournament to be Held Here

Appleton will be represented by 50 teams in the tenth annual bowling tournament for Elks to be held in Appleton beginning Feb. 13. The Appleton maple busters will take the drives at the start of the championship tourney and with many star performers members of the local lodge it is expected that the visiting rollers will have some high marks at which to shoot when they come on the alleys.

Entries continue to pour in for the big tournament. The Rhineland lodge sent in entries for five 5-man teams Tuesday and word was received from Green Bay Tuesday that more than 35 teams will represent the Green Bay lodge in the big event.

J. H. Balliet, secretary of the local committee, expects that more than 400 teams, representing nearly all the lodges in the state will be entered and that at least 2,000 bowlers will roll for the prizes in the tournament.

NINE ILLINI ARE PUT ON BLACKLIST

By United Press Leased Wire.
Urbana, Ill.—Nine prominent Illinois football players have been declared ineligible for further athletic activities because they participated in the Taylorville-Carlisle football game, Nov. 27.

The men will be permitted to remain at the school but never again represent Illinois in athletics.

They are: Larry Walquist, half-back; "Dope" Simpson, end; D. A. Milligan, end; "Little Joe" Keenan, punter; "Dutch" Kaiser, quarterback; "Big Jack" Crangle, half-back; P. T. Greene, substitute; John Teuscher, substitute; F. J. Cammagne, substitute.

One other player, Mullins, who made the trip to Taylorville but did not play, was not included in the list.

Minnesota Coach Formerly Worked At Lawrence

"Smiling Bill" Spaulding, who recently was appointed football coach at the University of Minnesota, is a former Lawrence player and coach. Spaulding was at Lawrence in 1901 and 1902 when he coached and played on the football teams. In those days Lawrence competed with Wisconsin, Minnesota and Chicago and in 1902 the Blue and White capped the undisputed championship of Wisconsin, numbering among its victims the state university.

Before coming to Lawrence Spaulding was a star athlete at the Black River Falls high school where he was member of the track, football and baseball teams for four years.

After his two years at Lawrence Spaulding gave up his college career and went to Chicago, where he secured a position with one of the big packing concerns.

Coach Cayou of Wabash, who had seen Spaulding play at Lawrence, finally prevailed upon him to finish his college course. He entered Wabash college from where he was graduated in 1907.

Spaulding played halfback and was one of the best men in the west in his day. The year he captained the Wabash Giants as they were known, his team inside of three weeks beat Notre Dame 5 to 0, Purdue 14 to 0, played Illinois a scoreless tie and lost to Chicago 5 to 0.

With only a limited enrollment at Western State Normal school, Spaulding has been turning out remarkable teams year after year.

His teams have walloped Michigan, Notre Dame, Michigan Aggies and scores of other headliners and near headliners in the realm of basketball, football and baseball.

Spaulding has the gift of getting the limit out of every man under his direction.

BILL SPAULDING

His uncanny magnetism soon wins his men over. He has the faculty of discovering in each individual his proper place in the game-winning machine.

Success has in no way changed Spaulding. He has never lost his extreme modesty. He has that simple direct frankness that is more effective than all the bluff and bluster in the world.

Those who know Spaulding predict he will do big things in a football way at Minnesota.

VOLLEYBALL TEAM SELECTED TODAY

Appleton to Have Strong Sextet in Tournament Matches Friday Night

Volleyball players at the Appleton Y. M. C. A. are anxiously waiting for the announcement of the men who will compose the 6-man team that will compete against the Milwaukee, Madison and Fond du Lac sextets in the tournament to be held Friday night in the Appleton Y. M. C. A. gymnasium.

C. O. Gochbauer has been named captain of the Appleton team and he will announce the personnel of his aggregation Wednesday. As there are more than 100 volleyball players in this city Appleton will have a strong sextet to send against the Milwaukee, Madison and Fond du Lac outfits.

Fond du Lac will have a fast team for the tournament. The squad has been chosen and the men have been putting in some hard work at practice, according to word from the Fondy camp. The Fond du Lac team will be composed of T. A. Hippaka, Frank Candlish, A. H. Eyer, Rev. J. H. Becker, R. B. Woodworth and John Jagfeld. Four of these men—Candlish, Eyer, Becker and Jagfeld—played on the team that won the district championship last spring and Hippaka and Woodworth are looked upon as two of the strongest players in the Fondy indoor league.

The volleyball tournament, which is to be held on the eve of the state Y. M. C. A. conference in Appleton, will provide entertainment for visiting physical directors and delegates and settle the long disputed championship claims of the four associations.

Drawings will be made Friday afternoon to determine the opposing teams for the first round. The two winning teams in the first matches will play for the championship and the two losing teams will play for third and fourth places.

NEW YORK GLOVE BOARD PUTS BAN ON JACK-BILL FIGHT

Boxing Commission Says Brennan is Only a Set-up for Champion

By Henry L. Farrell.
By United Press Leased Wire.
New York—New York virtually has Jack Dempsey out of his business for some time at least.

In putting a ban on the proposed Dempsey-Brennan contest, the state athletic commission announced it would not tolerate any bout between the heavyweight champion and an opponent whose record did not indicate he had a chance.

Looking over the records of the heavyweights under the champion there are few "cards" that will come up to the specifications of the commission.

Harry Willis, the colored battler, is one, but the directors of the game in New York haven't expressed themselves about "mixed bouts" and a large doubt exists that Gov. Miller would permit it.

In putting the ban on the Dempsey-Brennan thing that Tex Rickard was cooking up for St. Patrick's day, the commission said that it would be an imposition on the public and insinuated that it would be nothing but a "money grab."

It was pointed out that Brennan's only qualification was staying 12 rounds with the champion in 1920 and that since that time he had not been allowed to fight any first class opponents through the desire of his manager not to ruin him for another bout with Dempsey.

The commission suggested that Brennan could prove his right to another meeting with the king of the heavyweight by meeting Tommy Gibbons, Fred Fulton and Bob Rippe. If he "got over" any of this trio, the commission might allow him to be thrown in the ring again with the mauler.

ITCHING ECZEMA DRIED RIGHT UP WITH SULPHUR

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment and disfigurement. Sufferers from skin trouble should get a little jar of Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like a cold cream.

GREEN BAY MEN PLAN GRID TEAM FOR NEXT FALL

Expect to Secure Berth in American Professional Football League

Green Bay will have a team in the American Professional Football league next fall. J. E. Claire, manager last year, was forced to surrender his franchise at a meeting of the gridiron moguls in Canton, O., on Saturday, because the Packers last fall used players still in college, thereby violating rules of the association, but a group of Green Bay sportsmen have applied for membership in the association and indications are that their application will be granted.

After Claire had turned in the Green Bay franchise to the league officials, Earl Lambeau, who captained the Packer team in 1921, made application for the berth in the gridiron circuit in behalf of the Green Bay Football club. Don Murphy of Green Bay also attended the meeting.

Following an executive meeting of the league officials, it was announced that Lambeau's application was held up pending further consideration. Later one of the officials stated that it was more than probable that Green Bay would continue to hold a berth in the league.

PRaise for Green Bay

During the discussion of the Green Bay franchise, the Wisconsin city was called one of the best football towns in the middle west. Managers Flanagan of Rock Island and Dunn of the Minneapolis Marines lauded highly the treatment given their teams while in Green Bay and also stated that the Green Bay gridiron was one of the best in the country.

A meeting will be held in Green Bay Friday night when plans will be discussed for securing a franchise in the Professional Football association and putting a team in the field next fall. Howard P. Buck of Appleton will attend the meeting.

EXHIBIT SHOWS HOW ADVERTISING HAS MADE GROWTH

Local Possibilities Must Be Stressed, Corbett Says of Advertising

An interesting exhibit on national advertising has been prepared by Secretary Hugh G. Corbett of Appleton Chamber of Commerce and will be shown by him to the local committee on nationally advertising the Fox river valley or to any group interested in an intensive advertising campaign for the promotion of home products and industry.

A map of the United States illustrating the location of the centers of population in this country is first among the exhibits. On this map are marked those areas which experienced a 75 per cent increase in population during the last 10 years. California, Arizona, part of Texas, Washington and Wyoming, all of Montana and Florida and northern Minnesota are so marked. Other places are marked which have experienced a 25 per cent increase in population during the last 10 years. This includes northern Wisconsin which has been widely advertised by various corporations.

Next among the exhibits are six page-advertisements in colors taken from a late number of a popular magazine. In order, these illustrate oranges, peaches, prunes, raisins, English walnuts and preserved fruits. All of these advertisements come from California.

NEED MORE PLANTS
"In any advertising campaign we must stress our local possibilities," Mr. Corbett said. "Paper-making is one of our principal industries here but paper itself is not a finished product."

"We could have a number of plants here turning out finished paper products. Boxes and many other articles are made from paper and I see no reason why these things could not be made right here instead of a thousand miles away. For instance the city of St. Louis recently found out that while shoe-making is among its principal industries all the findings used in making their shoes is purchased from eastern factories. Now St. Louis is advertising for concerns to open factories for shoe findings there."

WOULD ADVERTISE CHEESE
A map of Wisconsin prepared by Mr. Corbett shows that 22 counties in the northern part of the state are not more than 30 per cent developed and all counties except Grant south of a line drawn from the mouth of the Wisconsin river to Green Bay are over 60 per cent developed. St. Croix is the only northern county that is more than 60 per cent developed and this is because of its nearness to the twin cities of Minnesota.

How Will The Examiner Ever Give This Name?

What's in a name? Well, there's 15 letters in this one and that's saying a great deal. He came to the United States June 18, 1920 and was a native of Greece. On his application for first papers he signed his first name Nikolai which is Nicholas in Greek.

"If we could picture cheese the same way as California is advertising its fruits the whole United States would soon be eating Wisconsin cheese and would want no other kind. Cheese is good. It is one of our chief products. But how many families ever think of putting it on the table? The same thing is true of butter. A wide advertising campaign properly conducted would result in a tremendous increase in the market for Wisconsin products."
